To the friends of Temperance and the public generally we now make our appeal in behalf of this paper. The publisher feeling it a matter of importance to the interest of the Temperance cause in the District, as well as the general interest of the cause, and having been, as he conceives, Providentially placed in a situation at this time when he can mingle this interest with that of the business men, and thereby render a double service to the community, and still further open a medium of communication by which our principles may be extended far and wide, at a cheap rate. He has purchased a printing establishment, so as not only to be able to put a daily paper regularly to press, but also a weekly; and still further, be able to do any other printing the public may be pleased to have done; and he assures them that they shall have no cause of complaint. He has made arrangements by which he can devote his time to the interest of the office and the paper; and, having employed Mr. Charles W.
Fenton, who will be always on the spot, to conduct the printing, he has no doubt but that general satisfaction will be given. We shall make arrangements to have the earliest news; also the proceedings of Congress.

We wish all who are indebted for the paper up to this time to pay up, as the affairs of the tri-weekly must be closed. They will perceive that we are about to give them a better paper, double the number, at the same price.

While the "COLUMBIAN FOUNTAIN" will be devoted to the cause of Temperance, its columns will be enriched by original articles on subjects calculated to interest, instruct, and benefit its readers. It is intended so to blend variety, amusement, and instruction, as that the various tastes of its patrons may be (as far as is practicable) gratified. Commerce, Literature, and Science, and every other subject of interest, not inconsistent with Temperance and morality, will receive the earnest attention of the publishers.
Nothing of a sectarian, political, or personal character will be admitted.

A CARD.

THE subscriber begs leave to say to members of Congress and others, that he has several good rooms which he will let on accommodating terms, either furnished or unfurnished, located on the South side of Pennsylvania avenue, between 9th and 10th streets, and equidistant between the Capitol and the public offices. I have also two of the best cellars in the city, which I will rent in part or the whole, or receive goods on storage.
This is a good opportunity for butchers or market people.

MISCELLANEOUS.

POSTMASTER GENERAL IN DIS- GUISE.

BY SOL SMITH.

On my way to the North, in 1835, in company with several gentlemen of New Orleans, it happened that the stage in which we were passengers stopped for supper at a small village, situated between the towns of Columbus and Zanesville, on the Cumberland road, in the State of Ohio.

There was a great gathering of militia captains, lieutenants, ensigns, sergeants, and corporals, with a considerable sprinkling of privates, all of whom had been exhibiting their patriotism during the day, by marching up and down the roads, shouldering arms, carrying arms, presenting arms, and charging bayonets, preparatory to the intended hostile operations against the neighboring State of Michigan, the authorities of which, and those of the State of Ohio, were at open war—almost—about boundary.

For the purpose of amusement, it had been agreed that the stage-driver should be informed, confidentially, that I was Amos Kendall, Postmaster General of the United States, traveling in disguise, and assuming the very common name of Smith, in order to discover abuses in the transportation department. With many mysterious hints, and under strict charges of secrecy, Jehu was made acquainted with the awful fact, that he was actually driving the important individual above named. The reins almost fell from his hands! "What, Mr.
Kendall! Amos Kendall!" exclaimed the astonished driver—"it can't be possible!"
"It is possible," answered the gentleman who was imparting the information, and who was enjoying an outside seat; "and it is his wish to be entirely private, in order to avoid the attentions that would otherwise be lavished upon him." The driver promised the most inviolable secrecy, and proceeded to curdy down his horses.

We had not been long in the hotel, where our supper was being prepared, before it was plainly perceptible that something was going on, curious glances were thrown into the bar-room where we were sitting—militia officers flitted about or collected into groups—the landlord and his family began to spruce up; in brief, it was evident our secret had been confidentially imparted to half the village.

The first demonstration that was made, consisted of an invitation to my friends and myself to accept the use of the private parlor. This being at once agreed to, the landlord ventured to suggest that if not disagreeable to me, my fellow-citizens of the village would like to pay their respects to me, and take me by the hand.

"No objections in the world," said he,
"let the worthy citizens come in."

Then followed a scene of the richest kind of fun, but Dickens has described a similar adventure, and I pass on.

Supper was announced. I was placed at the head of the table—the richest viands and preserved fruits were set in profusion before us. We feasted!—and during the operation numerous female heads—or, rather, heads of females—were continually popping in at the windows, and open doors, while the piazza was filled with boys of all sizes, who amused themselves by firing off Chinese crackers, sending up young rockets, and shouting "hurra for Jackson!" and his cabinet!

Supper over, we retired to the bar, and demanded our bill of expenses. The landlord smilingly answered, that he was too happy to entertain us without compensation—he felt honored by my sitting at his board, and my friends were equally welcome. After much urging, I consented to receive his hospitality gratuitously, since he insisted on it, but my friends, I would not consent that they should feast at his expense —oh, no! They must be allowed to pay for their splendid supper. Well, if I insisted, he would take pay from them—and he did.

"Could I say two or three words to you in private?" asked the landlord, in a low voice as he walked by my side towards the coach, which was waiting.

"By all means," I replied; and he led me a little one side, into a dark part of the piazza. After two or three hems! to clear his throat, the landlord commenced:

"Whatever others may think of you, sir, I consider you an honest man."

"Sir, I feel very much obliged by the favorable estimate you have formed of me."

"Yes, sir, let the opposition say what they please, I believe you to be a conscientious individual—I do."

"Well, sir, considering this is the first time we have ever met, I must say your liberality is extraordinary; but I thank you for your good opinion."

"Ah, sir, though we have never met, I know you well—we all know you for a most efficient officer, and a deserving man."

"It is true, I am tolerably well known in the Western and Southern country, and, as for my efficiency, I believe I do push ahead as hard as a man conveniently can."

"Yes, I flatter myself that in the stage department I have made some improvements."

"Your removals have met with general approval in this part of the country."

"Removals?—Oh yes—I do travel a great deal."

"Yes, you do, and to some purpose.
Now I want to speak to you about our Postmaster here."

"Indeed! Well, what of him?"

"Are you not aware that he is a Whig?"

"No!—is he?"

"Yes he is—and it is thought by the friends of the Administration here, that he ought to be removed, and a good Democrat appointed."

"What is the office worth?"

"About $500 a year."

"Who would be a proper person for the office?"

"Why, I couldn't exactly say—but if—"

"Would you accept the appointment?"

"Most willingly, if you should think me worthy."

"Well, I'll tell you what you'd better do.
Write on to the Department—state the matter as you've stated it to me, and perhaps—"

"If you would just make a memorandum it would be sufficient."

"My dear sir, don't depend on any thing that passes between us here—here I am Sol Smith, as you may see by the way-bill; but at Washington—you understand?"

"Yes, I understand. Then I'll write on to the Department."

"Yes—write."

"Sir, I shall depend on your good offices."

"Sir, you may, your supper was excellent, your attentions shall not be forgotten —farewell—write on to the Department, by all means."

The worthy aspirant to the postmaster-ship of the village, accompanied me to the coach, carefully turned up the steps when I had entered, and then joined his fellow-citizens in the three loud cheers with which our departure was honored.

PLEASE TO STOP MY PAPER.—"I am going to stop my paper," said a miserable subscriber to a new paper, to one of his neighbors, "I cannot afford to take it."

"What is the price of it per year?" said the other.

"Three dollars," was the reply.

"And can't you afford three dollars a year?—Think of it, truly, three dollars a year! A year is a long time. Perhaps you have only a few such to spend here on earth. A year's a whole year! and only three dollars! A large closely printed, useful sheet; giving you the news of the week and a large amount of miscellaneous reading. And you can't afford three dollars for such a paper a whole year."

"Well, I declare, neighbor, you talk like an experienced man. I never thought of it just in that light before. It is only three dollars for a year, and yet the paper comes to me every week, and I love to read it; I always find something in it that interests me. And moreover, on a second thought, I perceive that, after all, a good newspaper is about the cheapest thing a man can have. He gets more reading for his money than he can in any other way."

"True, neighbor, and this shows; that what I have always said, is true; newspapers seem to have been designed almost exclusively for the benefit of the poor. No man is too poor to take a good newspaper, because it is the cheapest thing he can have."

Here both the speakers joined and said:
"Blessed are the editors, for they feed the poor with knowledge;" and then they separated with looks of high satisfaction.

THE PRINTER'S TEN COMMANDMENTS.

1. Thou shalt love thy printer—for he is the standard of thy country.

2. Thou shalt subscribe to his paper—for he seeketh much to obtain the news, of which ye may not remain ignorant.

3. Thou shalt pay him for his paper—for he laboreth hard to give ye the news in due season.

4. Thou shalt advertise—that he may be able to give ye the paper.

5. Thou shalt not visit him, regardless of his office rules—deranging the paper.

6. Thou shalt touch nothing that will give the printer trouble—that he may not hold thee guilty.

7. Thou shalt not read the manuscript in the hands of the Composer—for he will hold thee blameful.

8. Thou shalt not seek the news before it is printed—for he will give it you in due time.

9. Thou shalt ask him but few questions of things in the office—from it, thou shalt tell nothing.

10. Thou shalt not send abusive and threatening letters to the editor.

CHRISTIAN HOPE.

Hope, with uplifted foot, set free from earth, Pants for the place of its ethereal birth;
On steady wings, flies through the hazy abyss, Plucks amaranthine joys from bowers of bliss, And crowns the soul while yet a sufferer here,
With wreaths like those angelic spirits wear.

TUSTON ON THE COMMUNION.

A FEW copies of this beautiful little volume (the remnant of a large edition) may be had at Morrison's and at Farnham's book-stores, also at the Capitol or from the Author, the Chaplain of the Senate. It is spoken of in terms of high commendation by the religious and political press. Price

MEDICATED FUME BATHS.

THE subscriber has (at the request of several physicians) had erected at his residence on Louisiana avenue and the corner of 6th street, nearly opposite the Unitarian church, and on the same square with the Bank of Washington, one of Mr.
B. SWETT'S CELEBRATED PATENT SUL-PHUR FUME BATHS, for the cure of rheumatism, salt-rheum, scrofula, functional disturbance of the heart, the stomach, the liver, and the lungs.
"In 1816, Dr. Gales, of Paris, published, by order of the French Government, his reports on the efficacy of sulphurous fumigations in the treatment of the diseases of the skin, joints, and glandular system, chronic rheumatism, paralytic affections," &c., where it has been in use ever since.

The apparatus has recently been erected in many parts of this country, and meets the entire approbation of the medical faculty, being of the best construction for comfort and convenience.

The face is not included within the apparatus.
The individual inhales as pure an atmosphere as when sitting in a parlor, and is wholly unconscious that his person is completely enveloped in a dense cloud of dry medicated vapor.

The amount of perspiration can be regulated at the will of the person in attendance, and may be more or less copious as the nature of the disease and the condition of the patient may require.

The subscriber has in his possession many extracts from the most celebrated medical journals and physicians, which can be seen by any who wish to avail themselves of the Baths.

W. C. CHOATE.

If any have scruples about taking the bath, we advise them first to consult their physician.

The course of studies in Pennsylvania College is as extensive and substantial as that of any institution in the country. The Preparatory Department provides for instruction in all the branches of a thorough English business education, in addition to the Elements of the Mathematics and Classical Literature. The College course is arranged in the four classes usual in the institutions of this country.

The government of the students is a energetic as their circumstances seem to require. They attend at least two recitations a day, and the Faculty contemplate increasing them to three, Church and Bible Class on the Sabbath, and are visited in their rooms so frequently as to preclude the danger of any great irregularities. It is believed no institution in the United States has more exemplary young men in connection with it. They are all required to lodge in the College edifice, special cases excepted.

The annual expenses are—for board, tuition and room rent, during the winter session $61 87 1-2; for the summer session, $41 87 1-2; washing, $10; wood, $3 00. Total expense, $116 75. Boarding can be had in town at $1 25 per week.

There are two vacations in the year, commencing on the third Thursdays of April and September; each of five weeks continuance.

The summer session will commence on Thursday, the 22d of May. The annual commencement takes place on the third Thursday in September.

The Trustees have recently made various arrangements which will increase the efficiency of the Institution. They have increased the number of Professors and provided for the most ample instruction of the students.

Professor Baugher and Haupt are prepared to board boys and to exercise a special supervision over their studies and deportment, and Parents who may prefer placing their sons under their care, will be secure in regard to their proper management, under arrangements such as pertain to the family circle.
